FORMER EXPRESS AGENT ARRESTED

Oliver E. Paterson Held at County Jail on Charges of Embezzlement and Larceny.

INDICTED BY THE GRAND JURY

Oliver E. Paterson, formerly agent in this city for the Adams Express Company, has been arrested by Sheriff Van Roberson for embezzlement and grand larceny and is held at the county jail. He was unable to give bond for his appearance in court and will remain in the custody of the county officials until his trial is held in the circui court.

Paterson was arrested at Decatur, Illinois, where his father and mother reside. He was relieved from duty here several weeks ago, the company's officers having discovered a discrepancy in his accounts. His arrest was made at the request of the Express company.

At the time Paterson was discharged the company had received reports of his conduct. He is said to have spent money freely and that his associates were not satisfactory to the company. His shortage which amounts to about $200 was discovered at that time but his arrest was delayed in order to give him an opportunity to make good the loss. Since he was relieved from duty he has been under the watch of detectives employed by the company. It is said that he was under bond and while the company will lose nothing it is taking the initiative in having him arrested. This is in keeping with the policy of the company, it is reported.

Paterson was arrested under a grand jury indictment his case having been investigated at the last session of the Jackson county grand jury. At that time, it is reported, officials of the company appeared as witnesses before the grand jury and from their books presented evidence to show that Paterson was short. The indictment was not made public as he was not arrested upon the adjournment of the grand jury.

District Agent Schriber, of Richmond, and General Manager Brosius, of Columbus, O., were informed of Paterson's arrest and came here this morning believing that he would be tried at once. When they found that the circuit court was not in session and his case would not come up for several weeks they returned to their homes.

It is said that Paterson does not deny his guilt and that he is ready to enter a plea of guilty in court as he took the money and spent it. The local police had Paterson under watch for several weeks before he was discharged. The company was kept informed of his actions although he did not know that they were giving any attention to this office or his private affairs.

FUNERAL OF EDWARD HUFFMAN HELD AT DILLSBORO TODAY

Painter Employed on B. & O. Killed at Storrs Friday—Was Working at Local Freight Depot.

The funeral of Edward Huffman, a painter, employed by the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad Company, who was instantly killed Friday night at the railroad yards at Storrs, was held at Dillsboro this afternoon. He was well known to the B. & O. employes on the Indiana division where he has worked for a number of years.

For several days Huffman was working with a crew in this city and was engaged in painting the interior of the freight house. He left here Friday afternoon to get some supplies from Cincinnati. He left his working clothes here and expected to return Saturday morning.

While walking along the tracks in the yards at Storrs he failed to notice a train that was switching and was struck by a "cut" of cars. Both legs were cut off and his head was crushed. He died instantly. He leaves his widow and one child who live at Dillsboro.

Huffman was a brother of Henry Huffman, of Franklin, who was formerly connected with the Prudential Insurance Company here. The deceased had many friends in this city where he visited when his brother was living here. The accident was a shock to his many friends here.

MAY SELECT BLAND TO OPPOSE CULLOP IN SECOND

Republicans May Nominate Former State Senator as Candidate For Congress.

Martinsville, Ind., April 14—It was a bunch of hilarious Republicans that came to Martinsville today to attend the Second district Republican convention. The close fight between William A. Cullop and Charles Hunt for the Democratic nomination is responsible for the fact that there are a lot of disgruntled Democrats in the district and this lends encouragement to the Republicans. While there will be only 107 regularly elected delegates in the election today, the lobby of the National hotel was crowded with party workers early in the day. A train load arrived from the southern counties of the district at 9:30.

It was the general understanding that the name of James House, of Vincennes, would not be placed in nomination for congress, and that Oscar Bland, of Linton, formerly state senator, would be nominated unanimously. Mr. House came in from Vincennes at 9:30. He would not say that he would not be a candidate, but said he was for the best interests of the party, and was perfectly willing to step aside. Close friends of House, however, said his name would not be presented. While Mr. House is popular in his own county, and his name was suggested because he comes from the county where Cullop lives, he came into the race late. Bland already has opposed Cullop and lost to him.

COLUMBUS PEOPLE IN TROUBLE HERE

Outing Planned by Four Bartholomew County Residents Ends in Free-for-all Fight.

TWO WOMEN IN THE CROWD

Unusual Actions Prove Amusing to Spectators but Visitors Object to Laughter.

Four Columbus residents, two of whom were women, were hailed into the local police court this morning to answer to charges of assault and battery preferred against them as the result of a free-for-all fight which took place about 5:30 o'clock Monday afternoon at the corner of Jeffersonville avenue and Tipton street. The participants alleged to have started the trouble were Dalpha Williams, his wife, Carrie Williams, Nicholas Hare, his father-in-law, and Marie Keller. The last named said she had lived with the others for about ten years but Hare declared she had been with them only since Sunday.

It is alleged that they attacked Albert Elliott and Frank Harris, who conduct a barber shop on Jeffersonville avenue. The fight terminated in a real for sure hair pulling contest in which Carrie Williams proved superior strength much to the disapproval of Elliott. The four were arraigned today and each pleaded guilty. Mayor Ross assessed fines of $5 and cost in each case. The defendants had no money to pay their fines and were taken to Brownstown.

According to the story of one member of the quartet they were living at a fishing camp which they established in the vicinity of Azalia. They came to Seymour on a late afternoon car for a "lark" and made straightway for a saloon as soon as they left the interurban station and each drank a glass of beer. They then walked south on Jeffersonville avenue and their conduct on the street attracted the attention of a number of persons.

As the men and women passed the Wikle restaurant they had reached the height of hilarity and their strange antics proved amusing to several persons who were in the restaurant. The women saw the persons in the eating house laughing at them and the Williams woman walked to the window and made a spiteful face at them. This resulted in more merriment.

The Columbus visitors then walked around the corner at Tipton street and some one remarked they were going into the hallway. Elliott walked to the corner just in time to see them be refused admission into Nichter's saloon. They walked back towards Jeffersonville avenue and several remarks were made by the women. At this point Williams stated that he "would take a hand" and struck at Elliott. Without warning Williams' wife made a grab for Elliott's hair and held on with a tenacity that was surprising. The Keller woman and the elder man joined in the fight upon Elliott.

In an effort to protect himself Elliott started swinging his fists right and left and finally freed himself from their grasp. He was struck back of the right ear with considerable force. In the meantime Frank Harris heard of the trouble and came to the rescue of Elliott. Harris fell to the ground as he stepped from the curbing and according to the testimony was kicked by Hare after he stumbled.

In the rain of blows the Keller woman was presented with a black eye which carried all the colors of the rainbow when she appeared in court today. Several others of the quartet carried marks of the battle. The police were notified by telephone of the trouble and the call was answered by Chief of Police McCord who brought the four to jail.

The Keller woman seemed to have a large supply of names at various times giving Kelley, Smith, Tuttle and several others. She said she was the daughter of David Tuttle, of Columbus, and that she was married to a man by the name of Smith. He is employed at Indianapolis, she said. However, no effort was made by her to have him come to her assistance when the fines were announced.

The Williams woman appeared to take her lot more seriously than did the others. When she was brought to the Mayor's office for arraignment she could hardly answer the questions asked her because of her sobbing. In court, however, she had fully recovered and told her story with a firm voice denying almost everything that the other witnesses had stated. She was the only one of the defendants that made a statement.

Williams said that he had purchased no whiskey here but when he was searched at the jail a broken bottle was found on him. He said it was broken when he fell in the fight.

EXCELLENT RECOMMENDATION FOR EVANGELIST BENNETT

Attorney at Battle Ground Says Religious Awakened of Community Followed His Meetings.

In recommending the work of Evangelist J. Bennett, who will begin a series of meetings at the local Christian church next Sunday, John Cassady, an attorney at Battle Ground, says he is a "Problem of Mystery." Mr. Cassady writes that the Evangelist came to that village to hold a revival at the Christian church and no one expected that great benefits would result because of the conditions there. He says, however, that a chorus of fifty members was organized and excellent music was furnished for the meetings.

During the meetings sixteen were added to the church, Mr. Cassady writes, and if they could have been continued for a week longer the number would have been doubled. As a result of the revival there has been a religious awakening throughout the entire community and there has never been a time when so much serious thought is being given to religious life as at the present. He makes special reference of his lecture, "Benefits of Being an Old Maid," or "Nuggets of Gold." This lecture is filled with Irish wit and pleasantry, he says.

The local Christian church feels that it is fortunate in securing the services of Evangelist Bennett and expects a great meeting here. The services will be in progress for ten days or two weeks, beginning Sunday.

WAR DEPARTMENT ORDERS U. S. SHIPS TO TAMPICO

ATLANTIC FLEET RECEIVES ORDERS

TORPEDO FLEET IN READINESS

Battleship South Carolina Sailing From San Domingo, Intercepted and Ordered to Tampico.

By United Press.

Washington, April 14—The first warlike move made by the United States towards Mexico was taken today when Secretary of War Daniels ordered two American squadrons to proceed at once to Tampico, Mexico, and directing other commanding officers to make preparations to sail at any moment the order is sent. This indicated that the administration intends to take an hand in the settlement of the revolution in Mexico.

Admiral Badger, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, was ordered today to proceed at once with all the ships under his command to Tampico. Badger is now at Hampton Roads.

At the same time another order was issued that the Transport Hancock to sail without delay from New Orleans to Tampico with eight hundred marines.

The Battleship South Carolina which is sailing from San Domingo was intercepted and ordered to proceed to Tampico. The cruiser Nashville at San Domingo has been given a similar order as had the Tacoma now at Boston.

ASSERTS ORDER IS SELF-EXPLANATORY

HUERTA MUST SALUTE FLAG

Administration Officers Say Temporizing so Far as He is Concerned is at an End.

By United Press.

Washington, April 14—No explanation is forthcoming from the State department relative to the orders directing the American ships to Tampico.

Secretary of War Daniels "I am making public a most important fact which is self explanatory. I must not be interrograted about it. It will speak for itself."

It is believed that only one interpretation can be given to the orders of the war secretary. That is, Huerta must salute the American flag as reparation for the indignity offered the American marines last week. The administration officers openly declare that temporizing so far as Huerta is concerned is at an end.

When asked for an explanation, Secretary of State Bryan declared, "I cannot tell you any more at this time. Naturally, you can guess the reason for our action." Secretary Bryan would not tell whether O'-Shaughnessy, American Charge D'-Affairs Mexico City had been notified of the recent action or whether he had ordered him to demand his passport. It is rumored that the Charge has been in touch with the situation and will leave the country.

KING SWAT PLACED ON THRONE TODAY

"FANS" WATCHING FEDERALS

By United Press.
By United Press.

New York, April 14.—The coronation of King Swat was the chief business before the country today. Although an annual ceremony, the same old thrill was on hand, when in eight different cities the baseball season was formally opened and the National and American league teams were sent away in the pennant races.

In the American League the World's Champion Athletics opened their first battle of the year with Frank Chance's rejuvenated Yankees in New York. The Cleveland Naps clashed with the White Sox at Chicago, the St. Louis Browns and Tigers opened in Detroit and Clark Griffith led his Washington team against the Red Sox in Boston. The National League swung into its race with the Giants at Philadelphia, the Chicago Cubs hurling themselves upon the Reds at Cincinnati, Pittsburg at St. Louis, and Boston and Brooklyn clashing at Ebbetts Field, across the Bridge.

The cracking of the baseball lid after one of the wildest sessions of the Winter League in history, during which a club president was unhorsed, three new managers installed in the National League, and both factions of organized baseball shaken to their foundations by the onrushing Federals, who staged their first game of the season yesterday.

Although the training season was marked by the injury of players on several teams every manager pronounced himself fit and ready for the fray today. Everything points to the same ultimate result in the pennant races as that of last year—a sweep through the American League by the Athletics, the winning of another National League pennant by McGraw, and then the climax in the struggle for the world's title between these two great machines.

The great Mackian forces present the same front as last year, with the youngsters better seasoned and therefore more to be relied upon. McGraw goes into the fray with practically his same force, but if anything strengthened. By the acquisition of Bescher he has added speed to his outfield and in Mathewson, Marquard, Tesreau and Demaree he presents the same first line of pitching power with several youngsters in reserve. One of the teams expected to attract great attention during the National League race is the Boston Braves. After showing vast improvement last year, Boston is further strengthened for this season by Johnny Evers, deposed manager of the Chicago Cubs, and one of the greatest second basemen in the game.

With the Federals raiding every camp to some extent, the Phillies start the race with the most scars of the winter fight. Manager Dooin's men hung on to the Giants with every ounce of fight that was in them last year, and led the league for a time. This year, however, the Phillies are a problem. They have lost Seaton, Brennan, Knabe and Doolan to the Federals. If they set a pace such as was followed last year they will surprise even their most ardent followers. The Phillies are picked for the second division, but it's a long stretch from the showers of April to the dreary afternoons of the dog days and on through to the finish in October. Under Herzog the Cincinnati Reds are said to be a vastly improved collection of baseball chargers. And with the Pirates, Cubs, Dodgers and Cardinals talking of improvements, the race for lesser honors should be tightened up even though the Giants appear to have the crown leaning in their direction.

In the American League it will be Mack gently eases his well oiled machine into the tussle, Clark Griffith in the Athletics against the gang. As Washington, and every other manager for that matter will be directing his attack on the Mackian sluggers. Griffith looks as strong as the next one, outside Mack, this season, and should put up a sizzling fight. Cleveland will start with a handicap due to the injury of Chapan, and the Feds. After their slump of last year the Boston Red Sox are about due for a recovery approaching their form of 1912. Frank Chance expects to lift the Yankees free from danger of the cellar position this year, which must mean that the St. Louis Browns are ticketed for the place.

LOW MARKETING EXPENSE OF FRUIT GROWERS' EXCHANGE

California Association Has Reduced Cost to Minimum Says Prof. H. J. Eustace.

Chicago, April 14.—Skilful advertising has made the success of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, H. J. Eustace, professor of horticulture at Michigan Agricultural College, told the joint session here this afternoon of the Second National Conference on Marketing and Farm Credits and the Western Economic Society.

Prof. Eustace described in detail the organization of 6,500 fruit growers into the exchange, probably the largest and most successful cooperative organization of fruit growers in the world.

"Skilful advertising has resulted in increasing the demand for oranges 40 per cent in a distant district," he said, "and has made it possible to reduce the price to the consumer by encouraging quick sales.

"The yearly volume of business amounts to 20 millions, made up entirely of returns for fruit and receipts for supplies necessary to grow and market the fruit.

"So well has the organization of exchange been perfected and managed that it is possible to market this immense volume of citrus fruit at a cost of less than 5 per cent. It is doubtful if any agricultural crop in this country is marketed at so low a cost. This low marketing cost is one reason why the member of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange can have his fruit placed upon a market 3,000 miles from his orchard and make a profit from growing at often greater than that realized by a local fruit grower from growing apples.

"The well developed systematized cooperation makes possible the packing of large quantities of fruit under brands and grades that are uniform—the names of which are protected by copyright. Valuable as is this feature in itself it has a great indirect value or asset in that these brands and grades may be and often are extensively advertised."

A Kansas Letter.

Ervin M. Ruddick, of Hutchinson, Kans., in renewing his subscription to the Republican writes as follows:

"I never have seen a paper that gives the news in full about happenings around town and country any better than the Seymour Republican.

"The past summer has been one of the hardest summers on the people of Kansas for many years. When corn was in tassel there was so much dry weather that in a short space of time it was lying flat on the ground. The least rain fell through the summer that has fallen in many a year. The prospects for the year 1914 look good. We had an exceedingly good winter. My stock was in the barn only three days, I believe, during winter. We have had but little snow and the wheat made good growth and there was abundant pasture furnished the stock. This was a great help to the farmer, being so short of feed the past year.

"This year surpasses many a one in the amount of acres of wheat put out. Not having corn to gather farmtook advantage of turning much of the ground in corn to wheat. If conditions are favorable I believe that this year will break all past records for Kansas in the production of wheat. Not only has this part of Kansas a good prospect for good crops, but many of the people of this country have decided that they needed a higher standard of morality and Christianity. A meeting in which there were fifteen churches cooperating was held by Charles Regin Scofield of Chicago. The union meetings continued for two months, in which time there were over 4,000 that confessed Christ."

SENSIBLE REGULATIONS OF STORAGE INDUSTRY URGED

Speaker at Conference on Marketing and Farm Credits Opposed to Hostile Legislation.

By United Press

Chicago, Ill., April 14.—Sensible regulation of the cold storage industry, rather than hostile legislation seeking to kill off the business, was advocated this afternoon by G. H. Benkendorf, assistant professor of dairy husbandry at the University of Wisconsin, who spoke before the joint session of the Second National Conference on Marketing and Farm Credits and the Western Economic Society.

"The cold storage plant should be treated as a friend rather than an enemy of the public," said Prof. Benkendorf. "The consumer in the city at the present time is so far distant from the manufacturer that without modern methods of keeping dairy products cold until they reach him, they would be practically spoiled.

"Proper refrigeration in transit is another factor of utmost importance in the marketing of dairy products. Butter once heated will never recover its proper texture, no matter how cold it is kept theerafter.

"Proper cooperation between the railroads and the creamery man and cheese dealers will do much toward solving the problem of marketing butter properly. Very seldom will the railroads turn down a reasonable proposition. The railroads appreciate the importance of the dairy industry, and will do all they can to cooperate with the dairyman."

"Bang! Smash! No More Hard Rubbing of Clothes!"

New Wash-Day Wonder Puts Wash-Board Out of Business

In all your life you never heard of anything like Washee Wafers. It is something new for the washing of clothes. It is a revolution and a revelation. It absolutely puts an end once and for all to the wash-board, to the washing-machine, and to back-breaking rubbing of clothes. We don't mean it will partly do it—we mean it puts an end to all rubbing—every bit of it. You don't even have to get your hands wet, except when you are ready to wring out and rinse the clothes. Put the clothes and a Washee Wafer into the boiler, then sit down and take it easy, and in about half an hour your whole big wash is done, as though you had given each piece the hardest kind of rubbing.

Washee Wafers

Take the "Whole-Day" Out of Wash Day

The wonderful part of it is that Washee Wafers contain no acid, no alkali, no potash, no caustic, no clothes-eating material whatever. This is absolutely and positively guaranteed. The cleaning is all done by the scientific secret of steam combustion — millions of little steam globules are continually making tiny explosions in the wash water, removing soil and dirt as if by magic.

It is impossible for a particle of dirt to remain in your clothes, no matter how soiled the clothes may have been, when Washee Wafers are used. You will say you never saw clothes so snow-white. Washee Wafers cannot possibly harm the very finest fabric. Cottons, woolens, silks, all are cleaned with equal ease. Spend 10 cents, get a package of Washee Wafers, use it in your wash, and see a modern "miracle" take place. Washee Wafers will positively save your clothes from being eaten up by the use of the ordinary strong washing compounds which many housewives believe they have to use to get their clothes clean. That's all over now.

INDIANA MAN ESCAPES KNIFE USING MAYR'S STOMACH REMEDY

Charles Inman Able to Go to Work After Operation Was Advised.

Charles Inman, 424 East Chestnut Street, Hartford City, Ind., was desperately ill. He was advised to go to Fort Wayne for an operation.

Then he took Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and in a short time was able to go back to work. In a letter he said:

"My disease started seven years ago. I had to give up and go to bed. Four doctors said they could not cure me unless I went to Fort Wayne to be operated on, and that it would cost me $150 or $200. My daughter saw your advertisement and I took your treatment. In three weeks I went to work and haven't missed but one-half day since from sickness. It surely saved my life."

Similar stories of health restored are told in letters from people all over the United States. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is known everywhere. The first dose proves—no long treatment.

Mayr's Wondefrul Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and removes poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to C. E. Loertz' drug store and ask about the wonderful results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful effects. 3

PURDUE WILL MAKE SHORT COURSE BETTER THIS YEAR

Improved Equipment Will Be Purchased and Twenty Schools are Planned This Fall.

From G. M. Frier of the Agricultural Extension Department of Purdue University, comes the following concerning Short Courses just held in Indiana and those to be held during the coming season.

"One of the biggest features of Extension work in this state this year has been the Farmers' Short Courses. Sixteen of them were held during the past season December to March. The average attendance was over 700. Over 11,000 farm folk were thus reached directly.

"Each course consisted of about 25 practical lectures and about 20 classroom or laboratory periods. The work was gievn by a corps of eight people from the staff of Purdue University. A carload of classroom and lecture room material including twelve head of choice livestock was carried to each short course.

"The use of this material went a long way toward making the work concrete, practical and interesting. Classes and lectures were given in soils, crops, poultry, dairying, horticulture, livestock and home economics.

"It is planned next season to hold fifteen to twenty of these courses or schools and to improve further on the equipment and arrangements for the work. Applications are already in for half the number of courses that can be held during the coming season.

"Until the applications of all places desiring short courses are in, it cannot be known what localities will fit together into suitable circuits for this year. It is desirable therefore, that applications be prepared and sent in to the Agricultural Extension Department, Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., before the first of June. To any local leaders who are contemplating a short course, a circular of information will be sent on application."

A WIDE CHOICE OF MATERIAL FOR THE TAILORED FROCK OR THE GOWN FOR AFTERNOON AFFAIRS.

Every woman may have her choice this season of materials whether she be inclined to grave or gay. If bright colors appeal, there are the changeable taffetas, or checked and striped wools; if inclined to sombre shades there are browns, dull blues and greens which may be touched to life by one of the smart little colored vests or a sash.

Among the most popular and practical of materials for afternoon wear is silk poplin; it comes in all the new shades, drapes well and wears excellently. No. 8257 is an overblouse design developed in terra cotta poplin with an underblouse of figured net over chiffon. The sash is of satin. Poplin is wide and may be purchased from 75 cents a yard and up. To make this dress in size 36, requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch material. A quaint little Dutch suit for a boy of from 2 to 8 is shown in No. 8266. The high-waisted trousers are made of mercerized English cotton poplin, which is being much used for this purpose this season, and the blouse is of white madras with a frill about the neck and frills at the top of the cuffs of muslin. This suit requires for a boy of four years 1¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 8257—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 8266—sizes 2 to 8.
Each pattern 15 cents.

Care of Trees

Millions of trees die yearly from insect pests, scale and improper trimming; takes lifetime to grow a tree. Your trees on the lawn need care. Your orchards, if you want fruit, should be locked after; scientific treatment is necessary. We will be ready to do spraying on trees and shrubs.

We also handle roses, shrubs, ornamental and fruit trees, lawn seed and lawn fertilizer.

Our 100 gallon power spray will be here in a few days and will then be ready to do your spraying.

"I SEE BY THE PAPER WHERE:"—

Not the English of Lindley Murray perhaps, but nevertheless a very expressive phrase which we hear every day.

There is food for thought in it for everyone who has an appeal to make to the great purchasing public.

Why not make that "Where" apply to your goods or your store?

There is no appeal so direct nor one which brings such immediate results as that made through the columns of a live daily newspaper like THE REPUBLICAN.

The newspaper is the intimate friend of the family. People turn to it for guidance, and naturally they look to it for advice when they have shopping to do.

Where? LET IT MEAN YOUR STORE AND YOUR GOODS.

SEVEN KILLED IN BAD HOTEL FIRE

MANY LEAP FROM WINDOWS

By United Press.

Boston, April 14—In a disastrous fire which destroyed the fashionable Melvin Hotel early today seven are known to be dead and another is missing. Flames swept thirty kitchenette apartments and women were forced to leap from balconies to the street many feet below. They were caught in nets.

Mrs. Robert Adams improvised a rope from a sheet and escaped from a fourth story window. When she reached the street she fell unconscious. Mrs. Edith Bemis endeavored to escape in the same manner but lost her hold on the rope and she fell to the pavement crushing her skull. Her death occurred instantly. The loss is estimated at one hundred thousand dollars. Many were rescued from the windows as escape by the stairway was cut off by the flames.

Henry W. Bullock Believes Workmen's Compensation Laws to be of Great Benefit.

ON TRIP THROUGH THE EAST

By United Press.

Charlestown, W. Va., April 14.—Henry W. Bullock, chairman of the Indiana Workmen's Compensation Commission, who is making a trip through the East studying various compensation laws, finds that "much of the ill feeling formerly existing between workmen and employes is relieved by workmen's compensation laws. He found Mr. Gramm, formerly of Alexandria, Ind., here. Gramm told him that the Kelly Ax Manufacturing Co., is paying $2,400 a year for employers liability and is greatly pleased with the West Virginian plan whereby stock companies are eliminated and the employes get all the money.

Mr. Bullock writes:

West Virginia is something more than crooked rivers running between mountains of stone and coal, fringed with blue sky, and the battle ground of heartless alien coal barons and starving coal miners, whose tents are the targets for death trains bearing outlaws behind protecting armor.

It is a state wonderfully rich in

S. G. Rucker is moving his house hold goods from the flat over the Rucker Drug Store to his new residence he recently purchased on North Ewing street of Oscar Stevens.

Traffic on the B. & O. Southwestern is still light but it is thought that it will be heavier in about thirty days. The crews that have been off duty for several weeks, may be able to resume work at that time.

The drug store of Thomas Barrett, at Ewing, was entered several nights ago and a quantity of whiskey was stolen. It is reported that the officers there have a clew to the guilty parties and an investigation may be made by the next grand jury.

Farmers in this vicinity are hopeful that the rain will not continue many hours so that there may be no further delay in oats sowing. The fields an many sections of the county were in splendid condition for the seed and the short delay already experienced is not regarded as serious.

BRYAN'S STATEMENT BITTERLY RESENTED

Many Democrats In Congress Feel Affronted.

Washington, April 14.—Many Democrats in congress, especially those who served on the resolutions committee of the Baltimore convention, resented Secretary Bryan's statement charging that the free tolls plank had been slipped into the platform without the delegates knowing what it really meant. Some of these Democrats will have something to say in reply to Mr. Bryan on the floor of congress. The Bryan statement was interpreted here as hitting Senator O'Gorman hardest, because he is supposed to have fathered the free tolls plank. The senator declined to make any comment.

The senate committee on Interoceanic canals has formally settled down to the consideration of the repeal of the tolls exemption at their hearings. The first witness was Ernest T. Chamberlain, commissioner of navigation.

The most important fact elicited from Mr. Chamberlain was that out of the 24,765 ships engaged in American coastwise commerce, only 363 were capable of being used continually and profitably through the canal, and of these more than 90 per cent would be excluded from the canal on account of their owners being either a railroad or an alleged trust. Professor Huebner of the University of Pennsylvania expressed the belief that the saving to commerce by exemption of coastwise ships from the payment of tolls will not inure in anywise to the benefit of the consuming public.

every natural resource; her coal mines are extensive and fabulously rich, mountains of sand and lime stone, with table lands of timber, water power and productive soil abound, with fine examples of monopoly in natural resources which are a warning for our dealing with mineral lands in Alaska. Ownership of 30,000 acres of this rich territory secured for a song of political trick is not uncommon but usual.

Prior to 1913 the injured workers of West Virginia had no standing in court, as the common law defenses of fellow servant, assumption of risk and contributory negligence were in full force and effect. For a number of years the labor unions of the state had made numerous efforts to secure the passage of a liability or compensation law but had failed.

In January, 1912, Mr. Lee Ott, manager of the Davis Coal and Coke Company, in a convention of coal operators secured the appointment of a committee on workmen's compensation. His company was controlled by the Gould-Vanderbilt-Standard Oil syndicate and employed some 17,000 men working in 24 mines and he recognized that some kind of a compensation law would be passed.

The committee was appointed and the members worked with the labor group to the end that February 21, 1913, a compensation law was passed.

The West Virginia law is of the state insurance land, modeled after the Washington and Ohio systems. A commission of four members fixes the rates according to the hazzard of the industry but in no case more than $1 on the $100 of pay roll, which is far too low for some forms of dangerous employment, and about 50 per cent. too low for coal mining. The rates are justly as low as 10 cents in some non-hazardous trades.

The law went into effect October 1, 1913 and by the end of March, 1914, there were 1,700 employers paying premiums into the state insurance fund, protecting 155,000 employes. Nothing is paid for the first two weeks disability and only half wages thereafter.

About 25 per cent. of all cases are so small that they do not need medical attention. In October there were 33 fatal cases leaving 18 widows, 34 children and 6 dependent parents livand; and eight cases where there were no dependents found. In December the number of death cases was 38.

In Indiana the rate for employers' liability insurance for coal mining is $2.45 on the $100 of pay roll. While the rate in Ohio under state insurance is $1.35. In October $70,000 was collected in premiums in this state and the amount paid out and the amount estimated necessary for the payment on the claims then on file was $72,258. Thus a deficit of $2,258 was left but in November the premium received was $65,000 and the payments made and estimated for future were only $53,801; thus leaving a surplus. About 1,200 claims are being received a month.

The West Virginia law is received with favor by both employers and the employes except that the employes say the amounts received are too small. They are greatly in excess of those received before the law was passed.

I saw Mr. Gramm, of the Kelly Ax Manufacturing Company at Charleston, but formerly of Alexandria, Indiana, from whence the plant was moved when the natural gas played out. The Kelly people are paying about $2.40 a year and are greatly pleased to know that stock companies are eliminated and that their employes get all the employers pay. Workmen's compensation laws are relieving much of the ill feeling formerly existing between workmen and employers and are doing much to solve industrial problems.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LAST STATEMENT DIDN'T SAVE HIM

TOLD HIS STORY TO WARDEN

In the Very Presence of Death Young Cirofici Gave a Narrative of the Doings of the Night Herman Rosenthal Was Killed That May Have an Important Bearing on the Second Trial of Lieutenant Becker.

New York, April 14.—No innocent man was executed when the four gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, went to the electric chair at Sing Sing prison, according to the statement of Warden Clancy, who heard the statement of Frank Cirofici, "Dago Frank," who tried frantically to save himself by an eleventh hour confession.

What the Italian lad gasped out to Warden Clancy, Principal Keeper McInereney, his mother and sister, braced over a narrow table in the narrow confines of the principal keeper's office at 5 o'clock in the morning, may have an important bearing on the retrial of Charles Becker, but it was not enough to persuade Governor Glynn to grant a reprieve or to request the warden of Sing Sing to give the boy a minute of grace.

Briefly, according to dispatches from Albany, the boy declared:

1. The four of them were hired not to kill Herman Rosenthal, but John Langer, or "Dollar John," a gambler, who was about to corroborate the statement made by Rosenthal to District Attorney Whitman.

2. Rosenthal had shot his bolt and they were to prevent any harder blows.

3. The four journeyed to Rockaway in an automobile early on the evening of July 15 to kill Dollar John. They met him, but it was in a situation where it was impossible for them to do what they were sent to do. They talked to the man, but came away.

4. They rode first to a cafe in Second avenue, from where he, Cirofici, went to his home at 145th street and Seventh avenue. Later he was awakened by a whistle which took him to a window. He espied on the sidewalk below, Jack Rose, Harry Vallon and Sam Schepps, who told him the other boys were waiting for him at Bridgie Webber's poker room, Forty-second street and Sixth avenue.

5. He arrived there to find the others.

6. He was informed by Gyp the Blood that there was something else to be done.' Rose and Vallon were present.

7. Bridgie Webber came in to say that the —— was at the Metropole.

8. Lefty Louie told him it was to be Herman Rosenthal, the man who had squealed.

9. All started downstairs, but on the sidewalk a messenger of the tenderloin whispered to him that Jean Gordon, his girl companion, was under arrest up town, whereupon he left the party to assist her in securing bail.

10. Later that morning the three men came to his flat, where they talked about the murder and told him that Harry Vallon had fired one shot, but that Whitey Lewis had been entirely useless because his revolver had missed fire.

11. The following day he received one-fourth of $1,000 for the murder.

Supplementing all this, also according to the word from Albany, was a remark dropped four days ago by Louis Rosenberg, the most intelligent and the leader of the quartette, that Frank was not present at the killing and Whitey Lewis had not shot for a very good reason. There may have been other remarks made by the others, but they have not been revealed at the capital. For this there is only the statement by Warden Clancy:

"There has been no written confession, so far as I know, but from what I do know I can say that no innocent man was executed."

After hearing Cirofici's story Warden Clancy ordered that Judge Riley, at Albany, be called on the telephone. He waited for one last word. It was a question that he called back as he went to the door: "Had Becker anything to do with this?"

"No, so far as I know," answered the boy. "It was a gamblers' fight."

Clancy hurried through the corridor to his office, got the superintendent of prisons on the telephone and laid the statements of Cirofici before him Judge Riley asked him to hold the telephone while he talked with someone else. Who that was has not been stated. The superintendent called back again: "I am sorry. The governor will not grant a reprieve."

What Will Be Its Effect?

What effect Dago Frank's confession will have upon the already tangled situation in regard to the other principals in the case is now being discussed. Former Judge Olcott, an expert on criminal matters, said that it is his belief that Dago Frank's statement cannot be introduced into court, no matter what the circumstances are under which it was obtained.

John F. McIntyre, who defended Becker at the first trial, said he is doubtful that it can be used as legal evidence, but that it is possible the judge might permit its introduction. He said that no similar situation ever had before occurred in America and that the law points involved are debatable.

"If the statements of Dago Frank can be proved admissible," he said, "it would tend largely to exculpate Becker. Rose stated on the witness stand that he had informed the gunmen that he was doing work for Becker and that Becker would protect them. Dago Frank said that he never heard of Becker in connection with the case until after the murder.

"If Dago Frank is to be believed, it shows clearly that the gunmen did not know whom they were working for except Rose, Webber and Vallon."

Warden Clancy pointed out that Cirofici really thought he was innocent because he did not take part in the actual shooting. Whitey Lewis thought he was innocent because he did not fire a shot. While Whitey claimed that he did not shoot Rosenthal, he did not deny that he participated in the plotting. Gyp and Louie made pretensions that their executions would not be justified, but they based their claims upon the belief that evidence given against them was perjured and not sufficient to justify conviction. After Superintendent Riley had given out the confession of Cirofici last night he said:

"I hope this will be the last execution in the prison in this state. I favor the abolition of capital punishment in most cases. I intend to urge the passage of a bill abolishing executions by providing that the jury shall decide what is the penalty for murder. I believe that a jury should be given the power to send a murderer to prison for life. In cold, brutal murders, the death penalty might be inflicted, but in other cases life imprisonment should be the penalty."

Dollar John Langer admitted last night that he had heard that the gunmen had been looking for him the night that Rosenthal was killed, and that he had heard they were after him to kill him. "The day after the murder I heard that the gunmen had been out looking for me," said John. "I understood that they wanted me because they knew I was a friend of Rosenthal's and they all thought that I would corroborate his story to Whitman."

Dollar John denied that Rosenthal had ever asked him to back up his story about Becker's grafting habit.

HUERTA REFUSES TO SALUTE FLAG

This Is the Rumor That Concerns Washington.

SITUATION IS GROWING TENSE

If It Is True, as Rumored, That the Mexican Government Has Declined to Go Further Than a Mere Apology in Reparation of the Recent Tampico Indignity, the Only Way to Enforce Salute of Flag Would Be by Arms.

Vera Cruz, April 14.—It is reported here that Huerta has stated that no public apology is due the United States over the incident at Tampico, as no offense was committed.

Washington, April 14.—The administration has emphasized the obvious gravity of the present complications in Mexico by putting an embargo on all news from Tampico.

Confidence that the salute demanded of the Mexican federal commander at Tampico by Admiral Mayo last Thursday will be rendered was expressed at the White House. Beyond that not a word was obtained from any official on the situation at Tampico, and the state and navy departments declined to divulge any of the contents of their dispatches from Mexico.

It is known, however, that while Admiral Mayo made his demands on General Zaragoza, commanding at Tampico, the administration has taken the matter out of his hands and is putting it up to President Huerta. In that procedure lies the danger of the situation, according to the belief here, because of the possibility of Huerta's refusing to accede to the demands of the United States.

In fact there is a well defined report in Washington that Huerta has again defied this government and has told Charge O'Shaughnessy that he has made all the reparation for the incident at Tampico which the usage of nations requires and that he sees no reason for going any further.

The secretiveness of the administration in the situation was emphasized by the arrival of John Lind. There is good authority for the statement that Mr. Lind is in favor of the administration adopting a very vigorous attitude in backing up Admiral Mayo's demand for a salute as part of the reparation for the arrest of an officer and marines of the United States navy at Tampico last Thursday. In this attitude he will be at one with the president.

Should Huerta, however, refuse to yield, there is no way in which the United States can compel submission except by actual force present in Mexico City.

Rebels Reported in Retreat.

Vera Cruz, April 14.—Reports from Tampico are to the effect that the rebels are retreating to the interior. This move may mean, however, that they have fallen back for the purpose of reorganizing their forces for a fresh attack.

Postoffice Isues Fraud Order Against Evansville Dealer.

Washington, April 14.—A fraud order has been issued by the postmaster general against J. E. Damron of Evansville, Ind. It is alleged that he set himself up as a commission merchant at Evansville and that he bought produce worth $3,000 from Crane & Co. of Chattanooga, Tenn., and sold it in Evansville, without remitting the purchase price, and that he defrauded six other victims out of a total of $4,200 in the same way. The inspectors estimated that he "cleaned up" about $10,000 altogether, and it was shown that he used the mails to carry on his alleged fraudulent scheme.

The postmaster at Evansville will be instructed to withhold mail addressed to Damron.

TO HOLD CONGRESS DOWN TO PROGRAM

President Will Insist On Two Important Measures.

Washington, April 14.—The president has had two conferences with Democratic members of the house judiciary committee on the anti-trust legislation. At these meetings important additions to the measure supplementing the Sherman act were agreed upon. Afterward Chairman Clayton announced that the bill probably would be introduced in the house tomorrow.

The president disclosed to his callers that he is firmly opposed to the exemption of labor unions and farmers' organizations from prosecutions under the anti-trust law and from injunctions as provided by the Bartlett-Bacon bill. He made important concessions to the demand of the supporters of this measure in congress, however, by approving the addition to the anti-trust bill of the two sections referred to:

First, the so-called Clayton injunction bill, which passed the house two years ago and forbade the issuance of "overnight" injunctions.

Second, the Clayton bill passed by the house at about the same time governing contempt cases where disobedience of court injunctions are alleged.

Official announcement was made at the White House that the president would insist upon the completion of the anti-trust program before adjournment of congress. It was announced that the president considered the party under obligations to the country to enact the anti-trust and the trade commission bill as a redemption of the Baltimore platform pledges.

The president informed the members of the judiciary committee that he would not tolerate an effort to curtail the program in any way.

The Case of Jennie Brice

By

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Copyright, 1913, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

CHAPTER VI.

THE newspapers were full of the Ladley case, with its curious solution and many surprises. It was considered unique in many ways. Mr. Pitman had always read all the murder trials and used to talk about the corpus delicti and writs of habeas corpus, corpus being the legal way, I believe, of spelling corpse. But I came out of the Ladley trial—for it came to trial ultimately—with only one point of law that I was sure of. That was that it is mighty hard to prove a man a murderer unless you can show what he killed.

And that was the weakness in the Ladley case. There was a body, but it could not be identified.

The police held Mr. Ladley for a day or two, and then, nothing appearing, they let him go. Mr. Holcombe, who was still occupying the second floor front, almost wept with rage and despair when he read the news in the papers. He was still working on the case in his curious way, wandering along the wharfs at night and writing letters all over the country to learn about Philip Ladley's previous life and his wife's. But he did not seem to get anywhere.

The newspapers had been full of the Jennie Brice disappearance, for disappearance it proved to be. So far as could be learned she had not left the city that night or since, and as she was a striking looking woman, very blond, as I have said, with a full voice and a languid manner, she could hardly have taken refuge anywhere without being discovered. The morning after her disappearance a young woman, tall, like Jennie Brice, and fair, had been seen in the Union station. But as she was accompanied by a young man, who bought her magazines and papers and bade her an excited farewell, sending his love to various members of a family and promising to feed the canary, this was not seriously considered. A sort of general alarm went over the country. When she was younger she had been pretty well known at the Broadway theaters in New York. One way or another, the Liberty theater got a lot of free advertising from the case, and, I believe, Miss Hope's salary was raised.

The police communicated with Jennie Brice's people—she had a sister in Olean, N. Y., but she had not heard from her. The sister wrote—I heard later—that Jennie had been unhappy with Philip Ladley, and afraid he would kill her. And Miss Hope told the same story. But—there was no corpus, as the lawyers say, and finally the police had to free Mr. Ladley.

Beyond making an attempt to get bail, and failing, he had done nothing. Asked about his wife, he merely shrugged his shoulders and said she had left him and would turn up all right. He was unconcerned, smoked cigarettes all day, ate and slept well and looked better since he had had nothing to drink. And two or three days after the arrest he sent for the manuscript of his play.

Mr. Howell came for it on the Thursday of that week.

I was on my knees scrubbing the parlor floor when he rang the bell. I let him in, and it seemed to me that he looked tired and pale.

"Well, Mrs. Pitman," he said, smiling, "what did you find in the cellar when the water went down?"

"I'm glad to say that I didn't find what I feared, Mr. Howell."

"Not even the onyx clock?"

"Not even the clock," I replied. "And I feel as if I'd lost a friend. A clock is a lot of company."

"Do you know what I think?" he said, looking at me closely. "I think you put that clock away yourself in the excitement and have forgotten all about it."

"Nonsense."

"Think hard." He was very much in earnest. "You knew the water was rising and the Ladleys would have to be moved up to the second floor front, where the clock stood. You went in there and looked around to see if the room was ready, and you saw the clock. And knowing that the Ladleys quarreled now and then and were apt to throw things"—

"Nothing but a soap dish, and that only once."

—"you took the clock to the attic and put it, say, in an old trunk."

"I did nothing of the sort. I went in, as you say, and I put up an old splasher, because of the way he throws ink about. Then I wound the clock, put the key under it and went out."

"And the key is gone, too!" he said thoughtfully. "I wish I could find that clock, Mrs. Pitman."

"So do I."

"Ladley went out Sunday afternoon about 3, didn't he—and got back at 5?"

I turned and looked at him. "Yes, Mr. Howell," I said. "Perhaps you know something about that."

"I?" He changed color. Twenty years of dunning boarders has made me pretty sharp at reading faces, and he looked as uncomfortable as if he owed me money. "I!" I knew then that I had been right about the voice. It had been him.

"You!" I retorted. "You were here Sunday morning and spent some time with the Ladleys. I am the old she devil. I notice you didn't tell your friend, Mr. Holcombe, about having been here on Sunday."

He was quick to recover. "I'll tell you all about it, Mrs. Pitman," he said smilingly. "You see, all my life, I have wished for an onyx clock. It has been my ambition, my great desire. Leaving the house that Sunday morning and hearing the ticking of the clock upstairs I recognized it was an onyx clock, clambered from my boat through an upper window and so reached it. The clock showed fight, but after stunning it with a chair"—

"Exactly!" I said. "Then the thing Mrs. Ladley said she would not do was probably to wind the clock?"

He dropped his bantering manner at once. "Mrs. Pitman," he said, "I don't know what you heard or did not hear. But I want you to give me a little time before you tell anybody that I was here that Sunday morning. And in return I'll find your clock."

I hesitated, but however put out he was he didn't look like a criminal. Besides, he was a friend of my niece's, and blood is thicker than flood water.

"There was nothing wrong about my being here," he went on, "but I don't want it known. Don't spoil a good story, Mrs. Pitman."

I did not quite understand that, although those who followed the trial carefully may do so. Poor Mr. Howell! I am sure he believed that it was only a good story. He got the description of my onyx clock and wrote it down, and I gave him the manuscript for Mr. Ladley. That was the last I saw of him for some time.

That Thursday proved to be an exciting day, for late in the afternoon Terry, digging the mud out of the cellar, came across my missing gray false front near the coal vault and brought it up, grinning, and just before 6 Mr. Graves, the detective, rang the bell and then let himself in. I found him in the lower hall looking around.

"Well, Mrs. Pitman," he said, "has our friend come back yet?"

"She was no friend of mine."

"Not she—Ladley. He'll be out this evening, and he'll probably be around for his clothes."

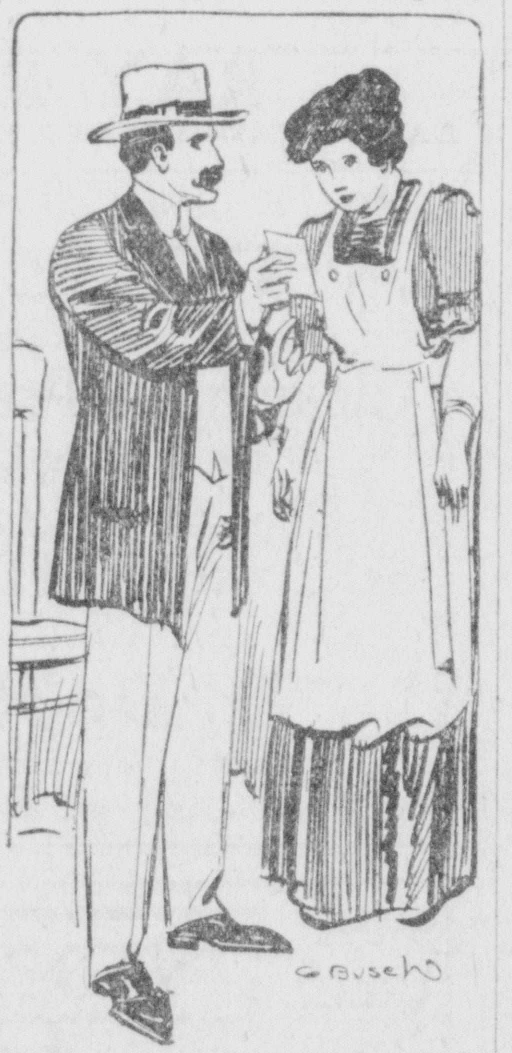
I felt my knees waver, as they always did when he was spoken of.

"He may want to stay here," said Mr. Graves. "In fact, I think that's just what he will want."

"Not here," I protested. "The very thought of him makes me quake."

"If he comes here better take him in. I want to know where he is."

I tried to say that I wouldn't have him, but the old habit of the ward asserted itself. From taking a bottle of beer or a slice of pie to telling one where one might or might not live the police were autocrats in that neighborhood, and, respectable woman that I am, my neighbors' fears of the front office have infected me.



"Look anything like this?" he asked.

"All right, Mr. Graves," I said.

He pushed the parlor door open and looked in, whistling. "This is the place, isn't it?"

"Yes. But it was upstairs that he"—

"I see. Tall woman, Mrs. Ladley?"

"Tall and blond. Very airy in her manner."

He nodded and stood looking in and whistling. "Never heard her speak of a town named Horner, did you?"

"Horner? No."

"I see." He turned and wandered out again into the hall, still whistling. At the door, however, he stopped and turned. "Look anything like this?" he asked and held out one of his hands with a small kodak picture on the palm.

It was a snapshot of a children's frolic in a village street, with some onlookers in the background. Around one of the heads had been drawn a circle in pencil. I took it to the gas jet and looked at it closely. It was a tall woman with a hat on, not unlike Jennie Brice. She was looking over the crowd, and I could see only her face, and that in shadow. I shook my head.

"I thought not," he said. "We have a lot of stage pictures of her, but, what with false hair and their being retouched beyond recognition, they don't amount to much." He started out and stopped on the doorstep to light a cigar.

"Take him in if he comes," he said. "And keep your eyes open. Feed him well and he won't kill you!"

I had plenty to think of when I was cooking Mr. Reynolds' supper—the chance that I might have Mr. Ladley again and the woman at Horner. For it had come to me like a flash as Mr. Graves left that the "Horn—" on the paper slip might have been "Horner."

* * * * * * *

After all, there was nothing sensational about Mr. Ladley's return. He came at 8 o'clock that night, fresh shaved and with his hair cut, and, although he had a latchkey, he rang the doorbell. I knew his ring, and I thought it no harm to carry an old razor of Mr. Pitman's with the blade open and folded back on the handle, the way the colored people use them, in my left hand.

But I saw at once that he meant no mischief.

"Good evening," he said, and put out his hand. I jumped back until I saw there was nothing in it and that he only meant to shake hands. I didn't do it. I might have to take him in and make his bed and cook his meals, but I did not have to shake hands with him.

"You, too!" he said, looking at me with what I suppose he meant to be a reproachful look. But he could no more put an expression of that sort in his eyes than a fish could. "I suppose, then, there is no use asking if I may have my old room—the front room. I won't need two."

I didn't want him, and he must have seen it. But I took him. "You may have it, as far as I'm concerned," I said. "But you'll have to let the paper hanger in tomorrow."

"Assuredly." He came into the hall and stood looking around him, and I fancied he drew a breath of relief. "It isn't much yet," he said, "but it's better to look at than six feet of muddy water."

"Or than stone walls," I said.

He looked at me and smiled. "Or than stone walls," he repeated, bowing, and went into his room.

So I had him again, and if I gave him only the dull knives and locked up the breadknife the moment I had finished with it, who can blame me? I took all the precaution I could think of—had Terry put an extra bolt on every door and hid the rat poison and the carbolic acid in the cellar.

Peter would not go near him. He hobbled around on his three legs, with the splint beating a sort of tattoo on the floor, but he stayed back in the kitchen with me or in the yard.

It was Sunday night or early Monday morning that Jennie Brice disappeared. On Thursday evening her husband came back. On Friday the body of a woman was washed ashore at Beaver, but turned out to be that of a stewardess who had fallen overboard from one of the Cincinnati packets. Mr. Ladley himself showed me the article in the morning paper when I took in his breakfast.

"Public hysteria has killed a man before this," he said when I had read it. "Suppose that woman had been mangled or the screw of the steamer had cut her head off! How many people do you suppose would have been willing to swear that it was my—was Mrs. Ladley?"

"Even without a head I should know Mrs. Ladley," I retorted.

He shrugged his shoulders. "Let's trust she's still alive, for my sake," he said. "But I'm glad, anyhow, that this woman had a head. You'll allow me to be glad, won't you?"

"You can be anything you want as far as I'm concerned," I snapped and went out.

Mr. Holcombe still retained the second story front room. I think, although he said nothing more about it, that he was still "playing horse." He wrote a good bit at the washstand, and, from the loose sheets of manuscript he left, I believe actually tried to begin a play. But mostly he wandered along the water front or stood on one or another of the bridges, looking at the water and thinking. It is certain that he tried to keep in the part by smoking cigarettes, but he hated them, and usually ended by throwing the cigarette away and lighting an old pipe he carried.

On that Thursday evening he came home and sat down to supper with Mr. Reynolds. He ate little and seemed much excited. The talk ran on crime, as it always did when he was around, and Mr. Holcombe quoted Spencer a great deal—Herbert Spencer. Mr. Reynolds was impressed, not knowing much beyond silks and the National league.

"Spencer," Mr. Holcombe would say—"Spencer shows that every occurrence is the inevitable result of what has gone before and carries in its train an equally inevitable series of results. Try to interrupt this chain in the smallest degree and what follows? Chaos, my dear sir, chaos."

"We see that at the store," Mr. Reynolds would say. "Accustom a lot of women to a silk sale on Fridays and then make it tooth brushes. That's chaos, all right."

Well, Mr. Holcombe came in that night about 10 o'clock, and I told him Ladley was back. He was almost wild with excitement, wanted to have the back parlor, so he could watch him through the keyhole, and was terribly upset when I told him there was no keyhole, that the door fastened with a thumb bolt. On learning that the room was to be papered the next morning he grew calmer, however, and got the paperhanger's address from me. He went out just after that.

Friday, as I say, was very quiet. Mr. Ladley moved to the back parlor to let the paperhanger in the front room, smoked and fussed with his papers all day, and Mr. Holcombe stayed in his room, which was unusual. In the afternoon Molly Maguire put on the striped fur coat and went out, going slowly past the house so that I would be sure to see her. Beyond banging the window down, I gave her no satisfaction.

At 4 o'clock Mr. Holcombe came to my kitchen, rubbing his hands together. He had a pasteboard tube in his hand about a foot long, with an arrangement of small mirrors in it. He said it was modeled after the something or other that is used on a submarine, and that he and the paperhanger had fixed a place for it between his floor and the ceiling of Mr. Ladley's room, so that the chandelier would hide it from below. He thought he could watch Mr. Ladley through it, and as it turned out he could.

"I want to find his weak moment," he said excitedly. "I want to know what he does when the door is closed and he can take off his mask. And I want to know if he sleeps with a light."

"If he does," I replied, "I hope you'll let me know, Mr. Holcombe. The gas bills are a horror to me as it is. I think he kept it on all last night. I turned off all the other lights and went to the cellar. The meter was going around."

"Fine!" he said. "Every murderer fears the dark, and our friend of the parlor bedroom is a murderer, Mrs. Pitman. Whether he hangs or not, he's a murderer."

The mirror affair, which Mr. Holcombe called a periscope, was put in that day and worked amazingly well. I went with him to try it out, and I distinctly saw the paperhanger take a cigarette from Mr. Ladley's case and put it in his pocket. Just after that, Mr. Ladley sauntered into the room and looked at the new paper. I could both see and hear him. It was rather weird.

"Gee, what a wall paper!" he said.

BRIDGE IS DEDICATED TO HERO OF TITANIC DISASTER

Augusta, Ga., Pays Respect Today to Major Archie Butt Who Lost Life Two Years Ago.

Augusta, Ga., April 14.—Two years to the day from the ill-fated night on which the Titanic carried to the bottom of the Atlantic in her giant hull with 1490 souls, citizens of Augusta today united to pay respect to the memory of Major Archibald Butt, who went down in that catastrophe to a hero's grave. An elaborate bridge in memory of Major Archibald Butt, formerly aide to the President, was formally dedicated, with impressive ceremonies. Former President Taft, to whom "Archie" was a dear friend as well as a protector, was present and added a few words of appreciation of the Georgian's character. Hundreds of prominent people from all over the country attended. Temple Noyes Lodge, of Washington, of which organization Major Butt was a member, attended in a body. The bridge dedicated to Major Butt was built partly by private subscription. It was really the ladies of Georgia who conceived the plan and carried it into effect. The city had appropriated for a simple, plain structure. The ladies of the state formed a memorial association and raised nearly $20,000, which has been expended in statues, memorial tablets and decorations for the structure. The dedication began at two o'clock and were in charge of the Masonic fraternity.

Found a Cure for Rheumatism.

"I suffered with rheumatism for two years and I could not get my right hand to my mouth for that length of time," writes Lee L. Chapman, Mapleton, Iowa. "I suffered terrible pain so I could not sleep or lie still at night. Five years ago I began using Chamberlain's Liniment and in two months I was well and have not suffered with rheumatism since." Convicts Fight Sterilization.

By United Press.

Keokuk, Ia., April 14.—Federal Judges, Smith, McPherosn and Pollock, are today hearing the attack upon Iowa's new law calling for the sterilization of insane and habitual criminals by the state board of parole.

The attack is being made by thirty convicts in the state penitentiary at Fort Madison who have banded together and employed a lawyer. The state parole board has already put the law into force in the three insane asylums, where fifty operations have been performed. The board issued an order for operations at Fort Madison, but it agreed with the attorney for the convicts to withhold action until the law can be tested in court. The convicts claim that the law is in violation of their rights guaranteed by the federal constitution.

A NURSE TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."—Miss EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

FAKE CHARGES OF PROSECUTOR

Prominent Citizens Arrested for "Vagrancy."

TERRE HAUTE ELECTION CASES

Evidence in the Trial of Mayor Roberts Brings Out the Manner of Procedure on Election Day in Which Prominent Merchants and Detectives Were Arrested and Detained on Trumped Up Charges.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 14.—The arrest of prominent merchants and members of the Burns detective agency on "trumped up" charges included in "John Doe" warrants on election day were attributed directly to Prosecuting Attorney Werneke by the state in the trial of Mayor Donn M. Roberts. Henry Meyer, general manager of the Citizens' Mutual Heating company, and Sheldon Anderson, a Wabash avenue merchant, testified to having been placed under arrest by Roberts supporters on charges of vagrancy and suspicion.

James A. Cooper, jr., recounted the indignities encountered by detectives from the Burns agency. Mr. Cooper said all the detectives were prosperous men, with money in their pockets, but that all were charged with vagrancy and their bonds placed at $42,000 each on three trumped up charges. Mr. Cooper further testified that since election Prosecuting Attorney Werneke had made no effort to prosecute the cases against the detectives, although asked to proceed on several occasions.

DEADLOCK IS UNSETTLED

No Agreement as to Arbitration of Street Railway Disputes.

Indianapolis, April 14.—The committee representing employes of the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal company is confronted with the proposition of giving Governor Ralston an answer to his recent proposal that three members of the public service commission sit as a permanent arbitration board for the adjustment of differences between the men and the company. This situation was brought about through a letter sent by President Robert I. Todd of the company to the committee of employes reiterating his stand that only the commission would be satisfactory as a board of arbiters.

The communication of Mr. Todd was based on a final appeal made to him by the committee several days ago that disinterested persons other than members of the commission compose the board. Neither the committee nor officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes would comment on the reply of the street railway head. Just what action will be taken on the reply to Governor Ralston's proposal was not intimated.

DIDN'T KNOW HIS OWN HORSE

Rochester, Ind., April 14.—Samuel Gordan, a farmer, had a peculiar experience here when a stranger, leading a horse that he had stolen from Gordan's barn, stopped him in the road to ask the distance to another town. The farmer did not recognize the animal, but when he got home he remembered the man had his horse. Within an hour, however, the colt came back, having broken loose from the thief.

Long-Fought Case Ends.

Rochester, Ind., April 14.—After being tried three times the famous case of Patchett against Graffis, which arose over $7.50 worth of rye, was settled here when the jury gave the plaintiff $20. The court costs alone will amount to $400 and will have to be paid by the defendant.
